ANOTHER FIGHT!!

CENTREVILLE, O.—One of the most gallant fights that took place here is that which followed the battle of Leesburg. On Tuesday morning, the Thirtieth Mississippi Regiment, Col. Dale, encountered a force of thirty-five Lincolnites, advancing in line towards Leesburg. From Edward's Ford, the Mississippians immediately threw out skirmishers, and after engaging the entire force, numbered to one, and drove them into their tents with a loss of more than forty men wounded on their side. The shot played fiercely upon the Mississippians, the fight, which lasted three quarters of an hour, which killed, and several slightly wounded. Our loss was Lieut. Fluker and Private Prions killed, and several slightly wounded. Col. Barksdale holds the enemy in check.

CAR THANKS.

To the citizens of Camden and vicinity, and especially to the I desire in behalf of the company to have the honor to command to return sincere thanks and grateful acknowledgments for the kind sympathies and valuable liberal and opportune extended. In addition to liberal donations in money, we have a good supply of clothing furnished for comfort of the soldiers, besides many tokens of kind appreciation, which is by no means in the regard of every honest man anxious to do his duty to the country in the emergency.

We trust the future course will prove the sincerity of the profession, and the measure of gratitude which animates us in the discharge of duty. THOS. J. WARREN, Captain, 15th Regiment S. C. V.

Not The Company had originally nearly ninety members. 1st Lieut. J. M. Davis was appointed Adjutant; Rev. B. McCallum, Chaplain; 2d Lieut. J. V. Lyles, and Privates S. B. Capell, H. F. Corbett and Kemp, died.

MEMORY OF THE BRAVE.

H. CORBETT, son of H. H. CORBETT, Esq., of Sumner, enlisted as a private in Capt. WARREN'S Company, 15th Regiment S. C. V. No better man as a soldier could be found—kind and generous to his fellow-soldiers and uncomplaining in the discharge of every duty, he was universally beloved by his comrades and had he lived, would certainly have been advanced by his officers to a position of honor and usefulness. His self-sacrificing devotion to his sick brethren and unwearied, uncomplaining assiduity and attempt to those entrusted to his care, more than probably induced the disease which terminated his usefulness. He died in Columbia, October 15th, at the residence of Mr. JOHN BEARD, where he had been removed from the Fair Grounds.

He was stricken down by a congestive chill, a few days previous, and so violent was the attack, that although he had the best medical skill, and kindest attention, and careful nursing, he was conscious but for very short intervals, and only occasionally was he able to recognize even his brother and most intimate friends. His death is severely felt in the company, and his family are indeed sadly bereaved, but we know not as those without hope; he had been a soldier of the Cross for some time, and we have the pleasant hope that our loss is his eternal gain.

SIDNEY B. CAPELL died at the Fair Grounds, Columbia, on Sunday morning, October 13th, 1861.

He enlisted in the Kershaw Guards on the 26th of September, and was at his post of duty at the Camp of Instruction, Lightwood Knot Springs, when attacked with measles, which raged in the camp. He was removed to the hospital, and there received every attention which medical skill and kindness could suggest; but it pleased God to remove him, and it is not ours to question, but obey.

He appeared to be kind and social in his disposition, and would, no doubt, had he been spared, proved a worthy and gallant son of South Carolina. He was a native of Sumter District, and his remains were carried to his home and entombed by the hands of those who knew and loved him best.

TIRA KEMP was among the very first to volunteer in the Kershaw Guards. He was attacked with measles in camp, and removed subsequently to the Fair Grounds, in Columbia, where he received every possible attention, and the kindest nursing, and died October 19th, 1861. He was an obedient and willing soldier, and had he been spared would no doubt have done his whole duty. To the very excellent Chaplain of the hospital, Rev. J. MONROE ANDERSON, he expressed his willingness to die, and a hope in Jesus; let us humbly trust that, now life's fitful dream is over, that he sleeps well.

Sacred to the memory of JOHN TEAM, who departed this life during the month of September, at Lynchburg, Va., aged 18 years, of Typhoid Fever—a disease which has swept away thousands in its ruthless way, and caused the army to mourn the loss of so many gallant spirits.

The subject of our sketch—a member of the Camden Volunteers, Capt. KENNEDY—was one who well united in his person the characteristics, both of the virtuous youth and earnest soldier. Ever ready to discharge the most arduous duties of a camp life, he was equally so on the field of battle. Through the action of Manassas Plains, when death was waiting in every breeze, he conducted himself with a coolness and daring worthy of a veteran soldier. But we mourn to record the melancholy truth, he was reserved at last to fall a victim to a loathsome disease. Thus it would seem, that we might well question the decrees of Providence, when it is remembered that one so young, full of hope and promise, after escaping the dangers of a terrible field of carnage, should be called upon to lay down his life as he thus lost it; but dare we not to question the Giver of all good! For in this melancholy instance, have we not found that it was gain to die? For our young friend, brought to reflect upon the uncertainties of life, gave his soul a willing offering to his God, and breathed out his life with the happy consciousness of an immortality beyond the grave; leaving to his afflicted parents, who were with him in his last illness, the happy assurance, that with him all was well.

Yet why should death be linked with fear? A single breath—a low drawn sigh—Can break the ties that bind us here, And waft the spirit to the sky.

To the memory of JOHN TEAM, aged 19, W. W. TURNER, aged 18, and LEWIS M. VAUGHAN, aged 21, members of the Camden Volunteers, Capt. KENNEDY'S Company, Second Regiment South Carolina Volunteers, who died at Lynchburg, Va.

As their names appear on the 1st, 2d and 3d, September, 1861, from disease contracted in discharge of their duty. Among the first to answer to the call of their native State, these gallant youths were present when Fort Sumter was taken, and with their company, among the foremost to tender their services to go to Virginia. They never faltered when called upon, whether in the ordinary routine of camp life, the arduous march, the exposure of picket duty, or the more hazardous encounter of the battle field. After participating in the glorious victory of Manassas, it pleased God to take them away from loved ones at home. Mr. and Mrs. Team arrived a few days before their son died. Mr. Vaughan also witnessed the closing hours of his son. The widowed mother had not the opportunity of seeing her son in his last illness. She has the consolation of knowing every comfort was rendered him. Thus has the District of Kershaw, which gave them birth, and the State of South Carolina whose honor was dear to them, been deprived of three noble, warm and generous hearts, and three households called to mourn on account of the relentless Northern Government, the guilt of whose acts no time can ever efface—and the knowledge of which will tend still more to nerve them that remain to strike for truth, justice and the rights which the Confederate States have proclaimed to the world. May these smitten hearts be consoled with the thought they did their duty to their country. The testimony of their officers is to them satisfactory. We can entertain the hope they have, through the merits of their Redeemer, gone where sorrow and grief are felt and feared no more.

Camden, S. C., October 17, 1861.

OBITUARY.

DIED, at the residence of her father, Capt. Wm. KENNEDY, near Camden S. C., on Saturday last, 19th ult., CAROLINE H., wife of Mr. JOHN WHITAKER, Jr., aged 22 years two months and eleven days.

It is scarcely four months since they were united by marriage, with every prospect of a bright future; surrounded with the comforts and blessings of life, and the endearments of affectionate parents, brothers and sisters, these endearing ties are all swept by the ruthless hand of death. How truly and forcibly does this affliction prove the shortness and uncertainty of earthly enjoyment, and point us to where true joy can alone be found. The subject of this notice was not unmindful of a great concern of her soul's salvation. It was her intention to have made a public profession of her faith in Christ by uniting with the Presbyterian Church, at the communion which took place this month, but alas! she was prostrate on her dying bed. We have every reason to trust she had made her peace with God, and will surround that table around the Throne above, which shall never be withdrawn. May this solemn bereavement be sanctified to the youth of our congregation, and the immediate family old and young. That what seems dark and mysterious to our short-sighted vision, may be the means chosen by an All-wise and gracious Heavenly Father to accomplish his wise purposes.

God moves in a mysterious way his wonders to perform: He plants his footsteps in the deep and rides upon the storm.
